And now a few words from me:

Hello, my name is Danny, and I am looking to make new friends in my forever home. I get along very well with humans and I don't mind another dog housemate as well. I think it's great fun to go for a walk, car rides are fine, and it's also nice to just curl up with my human and take it easy. Sometimes I hear or see other dogs outside my window, and I will bark at them to say 'hello'. I'm easy-going and happy to get along with the people and dogs I meet along the way. I bet we could be friends!

And now a few words from my foster family:

Danny is an easy dog to welcome home as he quickly becomes open-hearted to the people in his new surroundings and is fine with the other dogs as well. Danny's house-training is very good, and he makes good use of his morning walks. Danny seems to prefer the idea of human food over dog food and will try to convince you of this point of view, but he will eventually accept 'no' as the answer and eat his dog food. Danny is a lovely and sweet boy who values the company of his humans, but he has also shown that he can share attention with another dog or two. With his good nature and habits, Danny would be a great addition to any family where someone is home a good portion of the time.
