And now a few words from me:

Hello, my name is Jimmy and I'm looking for a forever friend and companion. I need to be given some time to get used to new people. Once I know you, I will gladly accompany you on walks, car rides, yard time, or just lounging close to you on the couch. If my human is not close by, I'm glad to have the company of a brother or sister dog. I'm happy at mealtime, of course, and am pleased to dine with my foster dog buddies. I'm also happy to have them close by so I can learn the routine in my foster home, but the humans are the most important part of the family. Want to meet?

And now a few words from my foster family:

Jimmy needs a few days to assess new people before he is trusting of them, and he's fine with other dogs as well. Jimmy's house-training is generally reliable, but if left alone, he may have an accident. Jimmy is happy to go on walks and is very polite meeting other dogs and people along the way. He is particularly happy to sit close to his humans. While Jimmy would be fine as an only dog, he has no trouble sharing a home with another dog or two. Jimmy is a handsome fellow who is looking for his own special person; he will be a wonderful forever friend and companion.

*Medical Notes: About a year ago (before he was surrendered to CDRO), Jimmy's back showed signs of possible dislocation, but this subsided on its own. Since then, Jimmy has had no further occurrence of any back problems, and he has been fine while in foster care. Jimmy has a small hernia visible in his chest area which requires no action.
