And now a few words from me:

Hi everyone, my name is Monty, and I'm the cutest little tripod ever! I lost my person, and suddenly found myself homeless through no fault of my own. I'm very sweet and affectionate with people I know, but sometimes I bark at strangers, especially in new or scary places like the pet store or the vet. My favourite things are training, cuddles, playing tug, and going for walks.

I have had a bit of a rough time before coming to CDRO. I got really scared and bit my vet, so now I need a muzzle when I get my check-ups. When with my family though, I'm a sweetheart and a cuddle bug. I didn't get out much in my former life, so I need to work on building my confidence. I would do best in a house with someone who is home most of the time, and who will help me feel safe and secure.

And now a few words from my foster family:

Monty is the sweetest little man. He doesn't let his missing leg phase him at all, and he motors along on his walks. He has no trouble keeping up with his foster sister, but he does sometimes need a ride home if we go too far. He is happy with three 20-minute walks a day. He loves exploring the neighbourhood and is great on leash. Monty is super smart, and he loves training. Right now, he knows sit, down, stay, spin, and shake a paw. He would do anything for a cookie, and he picks things up very quickly. He would love a family that will spend quality time with him and teach him new things. He can get overstimulated and nervous in new situations, especially outside the house. He will need a patient family that will build his confidence and continue his training and socialization.
